Jerrold W. Jones
High-Tech Crime Specialist

Jerry Jones has been an instructor for the National White Collar Crime Center (NW3C) since May 2006. He is retired from the Police Bureau in Portland Oregon after thirty-one years in law enforcement. During his police career, Jerry worked various assignments including fourteen years in investigations. For the last three years, Jerry was a full-time computer forensics examiner for the Detective Division and was assigned to the FBI Northwest Regional Computer Forensics Lab. In this capacity, he examined media in numerous cases including hard drives, cell phones, PDAs, and other electronic storage devices. Jerry possesses significant experience in computer forensics investigations and has been involved in cases on both a national and local level.

Jerry began his law enforcement career as a police officer assigned to various precincts and traffic division. He was a supervisor for the last twenty-four years before retiring. In 2003, Jerry became a Police Detective/Sergeant as a specialist in computer forensics and began working cases full time and teaching courses nationwide in this field.

Jerry has testified in court as an expert witness in computer forensic matters. Jerry received a bachelor's degree in Administration of Justice from Portland State University and has attended over 1,500 hours of computer forensic training. He is a former certified FBI Computer Analysis and Response Team (CART) examiner, International Association of Computer Investigative Specialists (IACIS) Certified Forensic Computer Examiner (CFCE), and holds A+ and NET+ Certifications.