James Foley
Vice President

James Foley is Vice President of the Curriculum Development & Training section of the National White Collar Crime Center (NW3C). Jim began his career at NW3C in 2002, however, his experience in instruction and development expands over twenty-seven years.

In his current role, Jim successfully manages nearly twenty-five curriculum developers, e-learning developers, a multi-media specialist, specialists, developers, and instructors. Jim's team focuses on development and delivery of both in-person and online training in the areas of financial crimes investigation, criminal intelligence analysis, mortgage fraud, intellectual property crimes, identify theft, and computer-related crimes. Jim and his team utilize adult learning principles to design and develop training geared toward the law enforcement audience.

Additionally, Jim identifies and collaborates with subject matter experts (SME's) from law enforcement, academia, and the federal government to assist in the development and training of current and relevant curriculum, based on the needs of our member agencies, partnerships, and feedback from our student population.

Because of his areas of expertise and numerous years of experience, Jim also participates and has served on several national committees, which include but are not limited to the Criminal Intelligence Coordinating Council-Training Task Team & Privacy Task Team, the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) Center for Task Force (CenTF) Training Program Focus Group, Department of Justice Elder Justice Initiative, and the BJA Task Force Training Focus Group.

During his career at NW3C, Jim led the team that designed and developed the Advance Criminal Intelligence Analysis to Prevent Terrorism Training Course. Jim has also worked with the International Association of Law Enforcement Intelligence Analysts (IALEIA), the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit (LEIU), and the Regional Information Sharing Systems (RISS) to develop the Foundations of Intelligence Analysis Training (FIAT), Intelligence Analysis for the Chief Executive, Intelligence Writing and Briefing, and several other courses for law enforcement, investigators, analysts, and prosecutors.

Prior to NW3C, Jim was an instructor and training designer in the Washington, DC area for a variety of Federal Government agencies.

Jim earned his Master of Art Degree from American Public University in Strategic Intelligence with a concentration in Terrorism.
